Who can participate in the SMUD battery incentive program?

Other qualified battery manufacturers may participate in the incentive program but are only eligible to receive the enrollment incentive at this time. To be eligible for this program, you must have a battery storage unit installed at your home and participate in SMUD's Solar and Storage Rate (SSR).

Does SMUD have a reserve if a battery system goes out?

SMUD will always leave customers with a 20% reserve at the end of an event in case of an outage overnight. The following battery systems are eligible for incentives: See the My Energy Optimizer Partner+ Terms and Conditions for more program details. Questions? Email SaveEnergy@smud.org.

What are SMUD incentives?

SMUD's incentives help offset installation costs, making the switch to solar and storage even more affordable. One of the most significant advantages of incorporating a backup battery is its role in managing Time-of-Use (TOU) rates. TOU pricing means electricity costs more during peak demand hours.

How much does SMUD pay for a backup battery?

SMUD doesn't stop at the initial incentive. Homeowners who add a backup battery can also benefit from ongoing quarterly payments of up to $332 per quarter. The amount depends on the number of batteries installed in your system and their capacity to store and distribute energy.
